

Inox Ply Dining

"Inox Ply" represents a formidable exercise in design, offering an extensive range of tables inspired by the symmetry and robustness of dumbbell weights. Available in white, black, grey, or rust color finishes, these tables not only exude solidity but also create a striking contrast along their edges. The construction of these tables relies on a selection of sturdy and durable materials, including marine board for the tops and bases, complemented by a lacquered steel base. The product boasts an array of choices, featuring four distinct colors, the option for either round or square tabletops, and a selection of five different heights to suit various preferences. The exceptional resilience of the Inox Ply table collection makes it highly suitable for a wide range of residential or commercial projects.
