

Skin Small Table

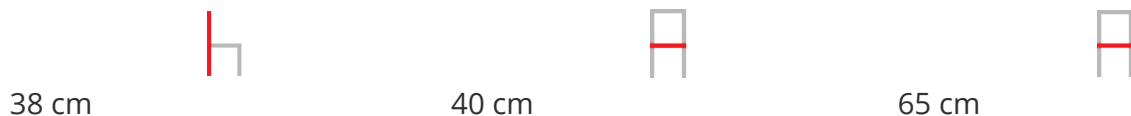

The harmonic, enveloping shells in powder-coated tubular metal that define the Skin armchair - designed by Giacomo Cattani - evolve and transform to compose a true collection. A chair, a stool, two tables, a low one and a high one, and the ever increasing range of colours available breathe life into a collection of furniture that fosters chatting and relaxation; welcoming, geometric patterns designed to meet the requirements of contemporary projects geared more and more towards a mix of indoor and outdoor. The play on colours - a plus point that defines the Trabà production - can be stressed by the countless options open when it comes to the shades and fabrics of the body: a wide selection for indoor and outdoor environments, eco-leather for creating fun tone-on-tone seats or bolder contrasting colour effects. Skin, perfect for adding a touch of personality to sophisticated residential and contract projects: like a second skin for gardens, patios, terrace-bars, verandas and bow-windows.
